

Little Writers (Online version)

Name: KIMURA EMILY (12)

Class: P. 4B

Title: Sports Day

It was Sports Day today for Tom's school. Ring! Ring! The alarm rang. Tom said, "Good. I had such a nice sleep. I am full of energy to run on Sports Day." He said to himself. Then, he looked at his alarm clock to see what time was it. "What???" It was already seven-forty-five!" He rubbed his eyes to see if he was just dreaming. It was really seven-forty-five. "Oh my God!" said Tom. Tom was late for Sports Day!

Tom found his uniform in the closet, but he couldn't find it. Tom asked Mom, "Where is my uniform?" "How do I know?" Mom replied. Suddenly, Tom found it. It was under the bed. "Silly me," laughed Tom. "Oh, yes. I was late!" Then, he wore his uniform quickly. He rushed to the dining room. Mom has already prepared his breakfast. It looked delicious! But Tom was too late to eat his breakfast. So he skipped breakfast and wore his shoes and rushed out of the house. "Wait! You haven't eaten your breakfast yet!" shouted Mom. But Tom was already out of sight. "Sigh..." sighed Mom and she ate Tom's breakfast.

Tom used all his energy to run to the sports ground. Luckily, he was not late, but he lost all his energy for the relay race that he joined. "Tom Chan. Please go to the running track." A man called. Tom slowly walked to the running track because he was too tired. "You Go!!!" the teacher started the race. On his turn, he took the relay baton and ran. In the middle, he fell. "Ouch! It hurts!" He shouted. But the cheering team cheered, "Don't give up! You can do it!"

Tom stood up and started running again. At last, Tom finished the race, but his team did not win. Tom was still happy because he learned not to give up and they finished the race.

