Title: Who's fault in the restaurant?

This afternoon, I went to a Chinese restaurant with Grandma. The waiter brought us to the table, and we chatted for a while.

Then we picked up the menu and decided the food and drinks. While we were thinking, I carelessly dropped the handkerchief! I could not realize it at that time. We ordered a bowl of chicken noodles as well as a cup of lemon tea.

After a while, the waiter put our food on the tray and brought it to us. Unfortunately, the waiter tripped on my handkerchief and split the food on Grandma's shoulders. The waiter was frightened and quickly passed her some tissues to dry off.

However, Grandma was very kind, and she forgave the waiter. She also told him to be more careful next time.
