Title: Ann and the treasure box

One Sunday morning, Ann and the children went to the beach to have fun. They felt excited.

Ann and the children were building sand castles when Ann saw something in the water. Ann told the children, and they went to see what it was. When they got closer to it, the children said, 'Hey, look, it looks like it's a treasure box.' 'I think you're right!' said Ann.

The children ran over and tried to pull the treasure box out of the water but it was too heavy, so Ann ran over and helped the children. After a lot of hard work, they finally pulled it out of the water. 'That was hard,' sighed the children. The children felt tired.

Ann asked the children 'What do we do with the box?' 'Let's open it,' said the children.' 'Ok!' said Ann, so they opened the box and inside there were diamonds, gold rings, and gold. 'Wow!' shouted Ann in surprise. She could not believe her eyes. Suddenly, the children asked, 'What do we do with this treasure box now?' 'Maybe we should bring it to that police station nearby,' said Ann. 'Ok!' said the children. After they brought the treasure box to the police station and asked the policeman where it came from, the policeman said 'Wow, kids. I think you must have found the treasure of a pirate named Captain Sail.' 'Yay!' said Ann and the children.
