Title: Ann and the treasure box

It was summer holiday, Ann and her friends were at a beach. They were building a sandcastle. They were happy.

Ann turned around and saw a floating thing in the water. She cried, 'What the...!' She stopped for a moment to look at the floating thing. Then she continued, 'What on Earth is that!' It came closer and closer. No one else noticed. Now, it was on the shore. They found out that it was a treasure chest.

They carried the treasure chest to where their sandcastle was but it was very heavy. They all wanted to know what was in the chest.

They really wanted to open it. So Ann said, 'On the count of three, we will open it. One, two, three!' They all opened it together. In the chest, there was something very bright. They couldn't see! Slowly their eyes adjusted the light. They saw a lot of treasures! Their mouths dropped. They all said, 'Whoa! So pretty!' There was gold, pearls and gems! They decided to bury it. They added some more treasure. But they were just shells. After they buried it, they continued playing.

Ann couldn't forget it. It was so exciting! So she wrote it in her diary.
