This morning, I joined a game at the school fun day. The game was called Touch & Guess. The host was my class teacher. 'Welcome to Touch & guess!' said the host. 'We have three students here today to join us, they are Amy, Frank and Tom!' added the host. The parents and children clapped. The host said, 'Amy, you will start first, remember not to be nervous, this is just a game!'

Amy went in front of the box and said, 'Here I go!' Amy put one of her hands in the box. Right when she put it in, she knew what it was. She quickly shouted, 'It's a teddy bear!' All the audience clapped including me.

'Well done, Amy!' said the host. 'Next, we have Frank!' The audience clapped once again for Frank. Frank went up to the box and yelled. 'HERE...I...GO!' But even though he looked confident, he only slowly put his hand in the box. When he put it in, he felt spiked, so he said, 'Ouch!' then quickly said, 'Is it a pineapple?' some audience laughed and some clapped. The host said, 'Yes, it's a pineapple!' 'Great job, Frank!' said the host. 'Finally we will have Tom!!'

I went up nervously, but at the same time, I felt excited. I put my hand in the box and felt something hard with wheels. I quickly realized it was a toy car. I said, 'it's a toy car!' The audience clapped once again. 'Excellent job, Tom!' said the host.

'That was really fun, wouldn't you agree?' said the host. Everyone nodded their head. I learnt that everything is worth giving a try.
