Title: An Unforgettable Day

Last weekend, my family and I went to Rainbow Places Rainbow Peak for an outing. Because my mother had surfed the internet and found out that there were a lot of different species of bugs on Rainbow Peak, I brought my magnifying glass and my father brought his camera. My mother packed heaps of homemade sandwiches and some orange juice too. We headed off at 10 am.

When we were halfway up Rainbow Peak, a group of butterflies flew around us and my father grabbed his camera and started taking photos. While he snapped away at the swarm of butterflies, my sister Hazel had taken a plastic bag and caught one. I told Hazel to let it go, owing to the fact that there were no holes in the bag and the butterfly might die because of no air. Hazel opened the bag and the butterfly joined the other butterflies.

We walked on and on and took in the spiffing scenery. After some time, we arrived at the Infinity Waterfall. It was clear, sky blue and also very high. It was also very hot so I asked my parents if we could play in the waterfall. My parents said, 'No, since the waterfall is very high, the current is very strong.' So we just had a picnic in front of the waterfall. When we had finished eating all the food, I wandered off to the waterfall, and to my utter amazement and horror, I saw a body, a woman's body, lying on the floor of the waterfall. I stumbled back, turned, and ran back to my parents. I arrived there, panting from running so fast, and poured out my story to my parents. They stared wide-eyed at me. Hazel only could utter one word 'Seriously' 'Yes!' I bridled. 'Look for yourself if you don't believe me!' We stood up and walked to the edge of the waterfall. 'Yuck!' Hazel cried. 'I think we should call the police.' My father suggested. 'I'll call Inspector Mornaday.' I said. I then dialed 911 and asked for the Inspector. 'Hello Inspector. A murder occurred at Rainbow Peak's Infinity Waterfall...Yes, I am not bluffing. Please come here at ONCE. Okay, we won't touch anything. Thanks.' 'He's coming and he told us not to touch anything,' I said, slapping Hazel's hand gently. Inspector Mornaday came roaring up in a shiny black bulletproof car and hopped out. 'Hello. This has been a most unfortunate experience. You may leave now. I hope you have a nice afternoon.' He said to us. 'Okay.' We replied in unison.

We packed up and trooped down the hill, chattering happily.
